Reducing Differential Attainment in GP training remains one of our top priorities and Cultural Competence is now a widely recognised tool to achieve this.

This interactive session will provide an innovative look at how educators can celebrate diversity and develop cultural competence for our workplaces and our teams.

Bitesize - Tutorial Starters for 10: Mark Taylor

This session was born from lockdown home education and the use of BBC Bitesize, laced together with a love of the Banff Film Festival. Less interactive and more reactive and reflective, so make a drink, sit back and get comfortable.

In this session we will watch some video clips that might set the scene for a topic or activity with GP registrars - either for group work or one-to-one tutorials. All have been tried and tested at some stage, with varying degrees of success...! Some need more 'selling' than others, so feel free to disregard those or use the excuse "You won't believe what someone sent me, let's have a look and see what you think...!"

Mental Health for Trainees: Karine Newlands

Supporting the mental health of GPSTs - this session will look at the issues that can impact on a trainee's psychological wellbeing and prevent them getting the most out of their training - we will discuss what resources are available for these trainees and the role of the Professional Support Unit.
